CROWD HEARS PREMIERE OF FINE ORGAN

Cleveland Man Gives Recital
On New Ruggles Memorial Organ Thursday.

A sacred atmosphere prevailed Thursday night, at the dedication services of the Ruggles memorial organ in the Presbyterian church. Miss Elizabeth Joslin Ruggles, donor of the instrument, was unable to travel here from her home in Santa Monica, Cal., but the audience in the church, packed to the doors seemed to feel the presence of this former resident, who was so thoroughly there in spirit.

Also in the audience were several who remembered Miss Ruggles' parents, Samuel Holliday Ruggles and Catherine Osborn Ruggles, in memory of whom the pipe organ was erected.

It was fitting at the dedication, the first magnificent chords of the new organ should be played by a nationally known concert artist, Edwin Arthur Kraft, Fellow of the American Guild of Organists. It was the desire of Miss Ruggles that there be nothing modern played on the organ at the dedication. Mr. Kraft's program was superb, assisted by his wife, Marie Simmelink Kraft, contralto.

SENDS REPRESENTATIVE

Although Miss Ruggles was unable to be present, she had sent as her personal representative, Albert E. Kent of Santa Monica, Cal. He was introduced by the Rev. Emil S. Toensmeier, and delivered a simple message, requested by Miss Ruggles. C. A. Welton formally accepted the gift for the trustees, and spoke of the inspiration the generous gift had been to the church. He said that with the knowledge that the church was to have a new organ, the members were inspired to pay off the church debt before installation of the beautiful musical instrument was started.

Charles E. Groce gave the prayer for the congregation, and emphasized the meaning of the gift which was in commemoration of two members of the old church. He expressed the gratitude of the church, and the sincere wish that Miss Ruggles might only have been present herself to see the pleasure that she was making possible, through the memory of her father and mother.

The organ was built by the Page Organ Co., of Lima, and was erected by Ellsworth S. Beilharz. In the church for the services played on the choir platform formed a stately background for tall baskets of chrysanthemums, quantities of fragrant pink and white carnations, deep pink roses and white narcissus.

Mr. Kraft, one of the foremost concert organists of the country, played for the dedication services and opened his program with a composition of his teacher, French Alex. Guilmant. Mr. Kraft also added with "Vidor in Paris." Following this part of the program, Mrs. Kraft sang, "The Message" by Paul Kustner.

MRS. KRAFT SINGS

The beauty of her rich contralto voice, with faultless diction and vocal technique, was recognized by some in the audience who had often listened to her over radio station WTAM at Cleveland.

The entire organ program was classical. Mr. Kraft, who is the organist at Trinity Cathedral in Cleveland, played the dignified program with a great deal of (Continued on Page 8).

JUDGE E. A. BROWN ADDRESSES ROTARIANS ON 'LIVING TODAY'

With the first meeting of the new year Thursday, Rotarians listened to Judge E. A. Brown tell about "Living Today."

"When we go home from our work," he stated, "our thoughts are usually for the morrow, not yesterday or what happened today, and this holds true of our thought for the home and for business."

"We should look into the future and not go back to the things that have happened, for the future is the thing that most of us are interested in," he said. "It is the happy expectation of what is coming that is worth while and only by looking into the future can we have the pleasure of the things that do happen in our life."

"Death is only an episode on the life of the hereafter, so we should live today for the fruits of tomorrow," he said. "We are proud of our ancestors, we hold them in fondest memory and sweet recollections, but we should be proud that we are living today, for the possibilities that are before us and we should be living today and be proud of our descendants."

FOG TIES UP BOAT TRAFFIC AT NEW YORK

Municipal Ferryboats Crash
In Harbor—Thousands
Kept From Labs.

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Groping through a fog that made visibility almost negative, the municipal ferryboat William R. Hearst rammed and sank the tug Mutual off the shore of Brooklyn today. Six members of the crew of the tug managed to get to the rail and scramble to the decks of other tugs or to the lines.

Harbor traffic was badly crippled, due to the fog. Thousands of New Jersey ferry commuters on their way to work in New York City were delayed.

First reports that two members of the tug Mutual's crew were missing were later believed to be unfounded.

The tug Mutual was the property of the Dalzell towing company. It had sought the shore line because of the dense fog that had settled over the harbor.

The ferry, backing out of her slip at a pier in Brooklyn, was bound for Staten Island, running by compass direction.

Officers of the ferry said they did not see the tug until the towboat was within 20 yards. Efforts to prevent the collision were ineffectual.

TIES TRAFFIC

All forenoon harbor craft proceeded cautiously, and many boats remained at their piers.

Four persons were hurt in a subway train crash at an outdoor station. There were several minor automobile accidents. Trains moved slowly into railroad terminals—far, toward, schedule.

The tug Mutual was virtually out in two in the crash and foundered in less than a minute in about 35 feet of water. The ferryboat, only slightly damaged—if at all—returned to its berth.

The ferryboat, bound from south ferry in Manhattan, to a municipal ferry slip in Brooklyn, apparently got off its course in the dense fog which shrouded the entire harbor. The tug was anchored some 50 feet off the breakwater of the Erie basin.

When the crash occurred, life lines were flung over the side of the ferryboat. Four of the men who had been on the tug were hauled over the side. Two others of the tug crew were picked up by a tug which came to the scene after distress signals had been sounded by the ferry boat's whistle.

The William R. Hearst put into the breakwater and landed the four men it had picked up and then proceeded to its slip to discharge passengers. The rescue crew did likewise with its two passengers.

Ambulances had been summoned from five hospitals. The ambulance surgeons were ferried across to the breakwater where they treated two rescued men for submersion and exposure, and arranged to take them to hospitals.

Police, after an investigation, said they were reasonably certain no lives were lost in the crash.

DIVERS HUNT BODIES OF 7 MISSING MEN

Kenneth Hawks, Well Known
Director, Among Santa
Monica Fatalities.

SANTA MONICA, CAL., Jan. 3.—Sorrow-stricken Hollywood today awaited the results of an ocean search for the bodies of seven of ten men who went hurtling to their deaths when two motion picture planes collided in mid-air and plunged into the sea in a mass of flames.

Something went wrong as the two cabin planes loaded with cameras and equipment swung in position yesterday toward sundown.

Flying 3,000 feet above the ocean and about three miles off shore, their wing tips interlocked and the two big planes staggered and swung together in a confused mass, then plunged into the sea in flames.

Onlookers saw three of the passengers hurled clear of the mass; their bodies were recovered. The other seven were carried beneath the surface by the tons of wreckage.

DIVERS USED

Today a crew of divers and a fleet of small boats were to comb the waters in an attempt to locate the wreckage and recover the victims' bodies.

The Death List

Kenneth Hawks, director and husband of Mary Astor; Max Gold, assistant director; Captain Ralph Cook, pilot; Lieut. Hallock, army reserve pilot; Geo. Eastman, cameraman; Conrad Wells, cameraman; Ben Franklin, cameraman; Otto Jordan, assistant cameraman; Tom Harris, property man; Hank Johnson, assistant.

Doors had been taken off the planes before they left the airport in order that the cameramen would have unobstructed views of the stunt they were to photograph. This, it is believed, will aid in locating the bodies.

The two planes, together with a third ship, had just jockeyed into position, facing into the setting sun. According to plans they were to separate at 4,000 feet to allow the third plane, piloted by Col. Roscoe Turner, to come in between Rouse and Cook were piloting.

Turner's plane carried Jackie Thibwass, Fred White and Paul Osborne. Thibwass's parachute leap was to be photographed by cameramen in the two ships, but the leap was never made.

They were preparing to shoot the last scenes of a film sequence for the Fox Film corporation entitled "Such Men Are Dangerous."

The story was based on the mysterious death of Alfred Hitchcock, Belgian multi-millionaire, who disappeared from a swimming plane above the English Channel July 5, 1928. Warner Bros. had started in the film.

BLAME SUN

Witnesses declare that both of the pilots had probably been blinded by the glare of the setting sun.

Anyway the two planes wavered, one banked slightly to the right and the other swerved upward and banked to the left; then they met in a sickening crash and, locked together, plunged into the sea.

THREE DIE IN LABOR RIOTS

JUDGE E. A. BROWN ADDRESSES ROTARIANS ON 'LIVING TODAY'

With the first meeting of the new year Thursday, Rotarians listened to Judge E. A. Brown tell about "Living Today."

"When we go home from our work," he stated, "our thoughts are usually for the morrow, not yesterday or what happened today, and this holds true of our thought for the home and for business."

"We should look into the future and not go back to the things that have happened, for the future is the thing that most of us are interested in," he said. "It is the happy expectation of what is coming that is worth while and only by looking into the future can we have the pleasure of the things that do happen in our life. "Death is only an episode on the life of the hereafter, so we should live today for the fruits of tomorrow," he said. "We are proud of our ancestors, we hold them in fondest memory and sweet recollections, but we should be proud that we are living today, for the possibilities that are before us and we should be living today and be proud of our descendants."

FOG TIES UP BOAT TRAFFIC AT NEW YORK

Municipal Ferryboats Crash
In Harbor—Thousands
Kept From Labors.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Groping through a fog that made visibility almost negative, the municipal ferryboat William R. Hearst rammed and sank the tug Mutual off the shore of Brooklyn today. Six members of the crew of the tug managed to get to the rail and scramble to the decks of other tugs or to get the lines.

Harbor traffic was badly crippled, due to the fog. Thousands of New Jersey ferry commuters on their way to work in New York City were delayed.

First reports that two members of the tug Mutual's crew were missing were later believed to be unfounded.

The tug Mutual was the property of the Dalzell towing company. It had sought the shore line because of the dense fog that had settled over the harbor.

The ferry, backing out of her slip at a pier in Brooklyn, was bound for Staten Island, running by compass direction.

Officers of the ferry said they did not see the tug until the towboat was within 20 yards. Efforts to prevent the collision were ineffectual.

TIES TRAFFIC
All forenoon harbor craft proceeded cautiously, and many boats remained at their piers.

Four persons were hurt in a subway train crash at an outdoor station. There were several minor automobile accidents. Trains moved slowly into railroad terminals—far behind schedule.

The tug Mutual was virtually cut in two in the crash and foundered in less than a minute in about 35 feet of water. The ferryboat, only slightly damaged—if at all—returned to its berth.

The ferryboat, bound from south ferry in Manhattan to a municipal ferry slip in Brooklyn, apparently got off its course in the dense fog which shrouded the entire harbor. The tug was anchored some 50 feet off the breakwater of the Erie basin.

When the crash occurred, life lines were flung over the side of the ferryboat. Four of the men who had been on the tug were hauled over the side. Two others of the tug crew were picked up by a tug which came to the scene after distress signals had been sounded by the ferry boat's whistle.

The William R. Hearst put into the breakwater and landed the four men it had picked up and then proceeded to its slip to discharge passengers. The rescue crew did likewise with its two passengers.

Ambulances had been summoned from five hospitals. The ambulance surgeons were ferried across to the breakwater where they treated two rescued men for submersion and exposure, and arranged to take them to hospitals.

Police, after an investigation, said they were reasonably certain no lives were lost in the crash.

GAS EXPLOSION FATAL TO TWO

Turpentine Pot Catches Fire
Then Ignites Gasoline On Top of Water.

LONG BEACH, CAL., Jan. 3.—Two men were dead today and four others injured, two seriously, as the result of an explosion which destroyed the captain's gig moored alongside of the aircraft carrier U. S. S. Saratoga.

Damages to the Saratoga is not thought to be great.

The explosion occurred when a turpentine pot in a punt alongside the ship caught fire and ignited gasoline on the surface of the water.

The dead: Matthew LaVieille, 22, a seaman, of Schneckady, N. Y.; Vincent V. Lalor, engineer, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Henry Kenfield, 24, Hampton, Conn., was seriously burned.

Albert L. Houston, 20, Centralia, Wash., also suffered serious burns.

Two seamen who suffered less serious burns were George W. Febrey, 19, Annapolis, Md., and B. J. Norton.

Coast Guard Chief Warns Rum Smugglers

A blunt statement that the Coast Guard "means business and cannot stop smuggling of liquor with soft words and amiable gestures" was made by Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, the Coast Guard commandant, upon being informed that three men had met death at the hands of his service while attempting to run liquor into Narragansett Bay.

Fire totally about $2,000 damage destroyed the dwelling on the George H. Smith farm on Westfall road Tuesday occupied by William Hickson Sr. and William Hickson Jr., father and son. The origin of the fire is unknown although it is believed fire originated in the kitchen from an overheated stove. The father and son both have large families and although none were injured all household furniture and other commodities were totally destroyed. One hundred fifty bushels of potatoes which were in the basement of the home were also destroyed.

The owner of the farm and home, George Hunter Smith, lives in Chillicothe and whether the dwelling is insured or not is unknown.

DIVERS HUNT BODIES OF 7 MISSING MEN

Kenneth Hawks, Well Known
Director, Among Santa
Monica Fatalities.

SANTA MONICA, CAL., Jan. 3.—Sorrow-stricken Hollywood today awaited the results of an ocean search for the bodies of seven of ten men who went hurtling to their deaths when two motion picture planes collided in mid-war and plunged into the sea in a mass of flames.

Something went wrong as the two cabin planes loaded with cameras and equipment swung into position yesterday toward sun down.

Flying 3,000 feet above the ocean and about three miles off shore, their wing tips interlocked and the two big planes staggered and swung together in a confused mass, then plunged into the sea in flames.

Onlookers saw three of the passengers hurled clear of the mass; their bodies were recovered. The other seven were carried beneath the surface by the tons of wreckage.

DIVERS USED

Today a crew of divers and a fleet of small boats were to comb the waters in an attempt to locate the wreckage and recover the victims' bodies.

The death list:

Kenneth Hawks, director and husband of Mary Astor; Max Gold, assistant director; Captain Ralph Cook, pilot; Lieut. Hallock Rouse, army reserve flier; Geo. Eastman cameraman; Conrad Wells, cameraman; Ben Frankel, assistant cameraman; Otto Jordan, assistant cameraman; Tom Harris, property man; Hank Johannes, property man.

Doors had been taken off the planes before they left Clover field in order that the cameramen would have unobstructed vision of the stunt they were to photograph. This, it is believed, will aid in liberating the bodies.

The two planes, together with a third ship, had just jockeyed into position, facing into the setting sun. According to plans they were to separate at 4,000 feet to allow the third plane, piloted by Col. Roscoe Turner, to come in between. Rouse and Cook were piloting.

Turner's plane carried Jacob Thiebawasser, Fred White and Fred Osborne. Thiebawasser's parachute leap was to be photographed by cameramen in the two ships, but the leap was never made.

They were preparing to shoot the last scenes of a film sequence for the Fox Film corporation entitled "Such Men Are Dangerous."

The story was based on the mysterious death of Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian multi-millionaire, who disappeared from a transport plane above the English Channel July 5, 1928. Warner Baxter is starred in the film.

BLAME SUN

Witnesses declare that one or both of the pilots had perhaps been blinded by the glare of the setting sun.

Anyway the two planes wavered, one banked slightly to the right and the other swerved upward and banked to the left; then they met in a sickening crash and, locked together, plunged into the sea.

THREE DIE IN LABOR RIOTS

BUCHAREST, Jan. 3.—Three persons were killed and 50 were wounded, some seriously, when a mob of 2,000 unemployed stormed the city hall at Temesvar, Roumania, today. According to word reaching here.

Among the injured were ten policemen who attempted to disperse the crowd. The emergency was so great that police fired indiscriminately on the mob, but the riot was not ended until federal troops had been mobilized and rushed to the scene.

NEW TONIC SUCCEEDS BY REASON OF ITS MERIT

Many Years of Research Is the Cause For Spinago's Ability To Perform Seeming Miracles

Spinago's success is not accidental. It is due entirely to the fact that the formula of this master medicine has been carefully worked out after years of research. Spinago contains no idle ingredients—every one of the elements in this tonic has its specific duty to perform, and does it. Chief among these ingredients is spinach, the value of which has always been well known. Spinach enriches and purifies the blood, furnishes food for the body, and keeps the system clean. Doctors have recommended it for years in diets prescribed for many and varied complaints. In addition to this important component Spinago is made up of a carefully selected assortment of medically valuable roots, herbs and barks, such as mandrake, cascara, sarsaparilla, gentian, etc.

Among the many, many residents of Circleville who are anxious to praise this new tonic for what it has done for them is Mrs. John H. Stevenson who resides in Circleville at 426 E. Union St., who speaks as follows:

MRS. JOHN H. STEVENSON.

"The first bottle of Spinago did me more good than seven bottles of another, advertised preparation. My health was terribly poor and I could get no relief from medicines and tonics. Indigestion and stomach pains caused me to experience a tired, aching feeling all the time. Some days I was able to get around. My appetite was poor, gas formation in my stomach and my weight was 99 pounds. I lacked energy and strength; it was a struggle for me to take pills at night. For years I tried tonics and medicines for which I paid and promises were made, but with no relief. Then I heard of Spinago and decided to try a bottle. The improvement was immediate and wonderful and gave me a renewed hope. I have now taken two bottles and am happy in the knowledge that my troubles are over. I don't have to take pills any more. My stomach troubles and constipation are over. There is no sign of indigestion or gas on the stomach. I have gained weight and am gaining every day, and feel better than I have in years. The tired, aching feeling is all gone and my only regret is that I didn't hear of Spinago sooner."

And there are countless others who have found through personal experience that stomach, liver and bowel complaints, indigestion, constipation and dyspepsia simply cannot withstand the powerful action of Spinago; that rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness quickly disappear before its attack.

Spinago is sold and guaranteed in Circleville by The Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St. and by all other good druggists in this vicinity.—Adv.

RAIL RATES FOR AIR TRIPS
In answer to the business men who say they would use air travel more if it were not so expensive, Universal Air Lines has issued a scrip, patterned after the old railway mileage book, which will give the patron air transportation at railroad plus Pullman rates. This will be available over the entire Universal system, but only to people who make regular use of it. The occasional air traveler will still have to pay the higher air rates.

Air scrip, it is explained, will be issued in $250 bills, the coupons exchangeable for air passage at rail rates in all offices of the company. Use of this system would save a traveler more than $20 on the run between Chicago and Kansas City. The regular air rate for that trip is $45.75, the rail-Pullman rate is $21.03; the air scrip rate is $21.03. The air trip, by the way, means a time-saving of seven hours.

This is a step in the right direction. Lower fares are almost as important as greater safety in winning the public over to common use of airplanes for transportation.

FOREST FOLLY
The United States Forest Service office in Portland, Ore., reports that timber waste in logging and forest fires of the past few years have completely denuded 2,500,000 acres of land. Most of this area will have to be artificially seeded before new crops of trees will be obtainable. At the present rate of planting, the report indicates, it will require at least 100 years before the total number of national tracts will be completely recovered with seedlings.

Some optimistic observer has said that people today are more concerned about the future than the people of preceding generations.

It would be a good thing if this concern were more apparent in the matter of forests. If we were more thoughtful about retaining lovely wooded areas for coming generations we would have more of them for our own present use and enjoyment. There is a vague not very widespread forestry movement, but it is not yet large enough or powerful enough to do much good. Year after year, we are losing our forests through human carelessness or indifference, where the timber is removed without regard to new or continuous growth, and where large tracts are runned by fire. The conservation movement needs a few energetic friends.

If only John is right about that weed, some enterprising rubber planter had better look to it quickly, as copyright "Goldenrod Trees."

The Chinese like the Chicagoans seem to live by holding each other up. Only the Chinese do it more politely.

Optimism may be good for business and home life but it isn't popular in paragraphs and comic strips.

Maybe some folks would like American juries in that World Court when we join it.

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

ENID MONROE, young and pretty, has been loved since school days by Ned Grier and Dick Grant, boyhood chums. She favors Dick. After college, the two boys get jobs with an oil company. Ned is sent to Oklahoma while Dick goes to Shanghai. En route Dick stops in Paris to see Enid and her mother, who are vacationing there only to learn they have left Paris. Next day he accidentally meets them. They had postponed their trip. Dick almost confesses his love to Enid but is prevented by a taxi accident. He leaves for Marseilles without proposing to her.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER X.

THE next afternoon the two friends went shopping, and Dick bought a magnificent Mandarin coat of rich Chinese blue, embroidered heavily in silk and gold with a beautiful design of lotus flowers.

He held it lovingly in his hands and almost caressed it, for it was to adorn his love—his Enid.

He could see her reaching his house he unwrapped it and laid it across the back of a chair and gazed at it. It would be the first garment in her wardrobe. He imagined he could see her before a mirror turning to one side to admire the design on the back. He could see her wrapping it around her adorable slim figure.

"Too bad you're going away," said Dick, as they parted on Nan-king Road. "I'll miss you."

"I won't be long in Pekin. I'll call you up as soon as I get back. Be good while I'm gone!"

It wasn't very hard for Dick to be good. He was working at top speed. Temptations didn't occur to him.

The day before Ivor was expected back Dick, walking home, saw a parade approach.

Taking his place at the side of a street in the Foreign Concession, he watched the irregular files of young Chinese pass before him. Suddenly there was confusion. One of the students had marched too near a policeman. The policeman struck him. And before Dick could have counted ten, there was a riot.

He braced himself against a wall and watched off the surging crowd which bore upon him. He had to laugh. Why, it was like being in a football game again. But it was hard for the people who were being knocked down and trampled to be laughing. He heard a shout.

"This wasn't such a riot as we thought it would be. A lot of tongues, angry about women's screams."

Then he saw a girl who had been knocked down try to get to her feet, but with each effort she was hurled to the ground.

Dick charged into the crowd. Once he was pushed back and lost sight of her green skirt. Then there it was again. Another push was coming around the corner. If he didn't get to her he'd trample her to death.

He lowered his head and ran with his strong arms bent out, pushing the crowd back. He was trying to get to the girl who was lying on the ground. He was trying to get to the girl who was lying on the ground.

He was trying to get to the girl who was lying on the ground.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

Guard Against Head Cold Infections

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AN INFECTION in any part of the body is bad and may cause a great deal of trouble. Infection of the antrum may sometimes be of long standing, and as a result of the pus germs growing in this cavity, may lead to a slow poisoning.

The bones of the face are hollow, and as a result, there are several spaces. One of them is the hollow under the cheek bone. This is known as the antrum.

There are also other cavities in the honey-combed bones of this region. These cavities all open into the nose, and they are spoken of as the "nasal sinuses," or the "nasal accessory sinuses."

One of these sinus cavities lies in the hollow bone corresponding to the inner end of the eyebrows, and at the root of the nose. This is the frontal sinus.

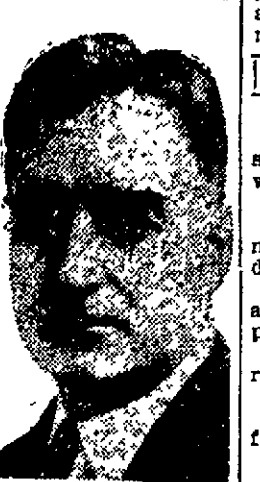

The sphenoidal sinuses are those deep-seated cavities which lie deeply embedded in the bones behind the nose. Between some of the nasal sinuses and the brain cavity is a layer of bone, like paper in its thinness.

Mucous membrane lines the entire nasal tract. It passes through the nasal openings into every one of the cavities. When one has a hard cold there is much inflammation and swelling of this delicate membrane in the nose. You have a "running" of the nose. When there is much moisture from this inflammation of the membrane of the nose, germs find a ready lodging place there. They may be carried into the interior cavities from the nose.

Now, if the antrum becomes infected with one of these runaway germs, and inflammation is set up there, the fluids become dammed up in this cavity. The narrow passage-way from the nose may be entirely closed by the swelling of the tissues. There is much pain and you may feel as though something was pressing hard on your back upper teeth, crowding them into the bone. It is very uncomfortable, and, what is more, it may be very serious unless it is checked. The antrum having become infected, the pus increases greatly, creating a poison which may be carried to every part of the body by the blood stream.

When you know you have antrum trouble, and sometimes it is of long standing after an attack of influenza, or a severe cold, the inflammation may be controlled somewhat by application of ice packs. This will help to keep pus from forming. A doctor should be consulted and his directions carefully carried out.

You see what grave trouble may develop from neglected colds or influenza. Great care should be taken, after a cold starts, to see that it is kept under control. One may have that dread malady, malarial trouble, following a severe cold if infection gets up that passageway which leads from the mouth to the ear, the Eustachian tube. Nobody wants to have that serious and painful ailment.

GAINS WEIGHT AS KONJOLA GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Grateful Lady Tells What New Medicine Did For Herself and Her Son.

"This amazing medicine quickly ended two years of suffering for me," said Mrs. Joseph Zeman, of Euclid Village, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio. "My stomach had become badly disordered and no food never digested as it should. Gas pains and bloating were followed by the most frightful headaches. I was often forced to go to bed for days at a time. Neuritis attacked my arms until I could not raise them and I was practically helpless.

"I never gave up my search for a medicine to help me and finally tried Konjola. In two weeks I gained several pounds in weight and my stomach ailment had been corrected. A week later the neuritis pains left me and I could use my arms again. My whole general health so improved that I feel better than I have in many years. Neuritis also attacked my son Louis, aged 18, and Konjola acted just as promptly in his case. I shall never be without this wonderful medicine in our home.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the leading druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

A talking comedy and Vitaphone varieties along with the second chapter of Tarzan, the Tiger, is on the schedule.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Will the wonders of the movies ever cease?

"The Mysterious Island" at the Cliftona theatre Friday and Saturday is proving one of the most astounding attractions ever offered on a local screen, and justifiably so.

Photographed in its entirety in natural colors, enhanced with natural sound effects and dialogue, and boasting a cast of more than average brilliance, this novel picture is a Jules Verne fantasy may be likened to nothing ever seen before.

"The Lost World" had its pre-historic dinosaurs and brontosaurus. "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" had its submarine life. "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" had its weird, futuristic settings, but this new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature has a little that is comparable to all these films and much that has never been imagined, less seen, in a screen play before.

Lloyd Hughes as Nikolai and Jane Daly as Sonia have the romantic leads in "The Mysterious Island." Lionel Barrymore is cast as Count Daktar, inventor of the submarine, which he hopes will help bring independence to his oppressed countrymen. Montagu Love assumes the role of Baron Falon, who poses as Daktar's friend until the submarine is completed, when he makes a prisoner of the inventor and tortures his sister in an effort to obtain the secrets of the freak sub-sea craft.

THAT BOTHERSOME QUESTION

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

ENID MONROE, young and pretty, has been loved since school days by Ned Grier and Dick Grant, boyhood chums. She favors Dick. After college, the two boys get jobs with an oil company. Ned is sent to Oklahoma while Dick goes to Shanghai. En route Dick stops in Paris to see Enid and her mother, who are vacationing there only to learn they have left Paris. Dick almost accidentally meets them. They had postponed their trip. Dick almost confesses his love to Enid but is prevented by a taxi accident. He leaves for Marseilles without proposing to her.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER X.

THE next afternoon the two friends went shopping, and Dick bought a magnificent Mandarin coat of rich Chinese blue, embroidered heavily in silk and gold with a beautiful design of lotus flowers.

He held it lovingly in his hands and almost caressed it, for it was to adorn his love—his Enid.

That night when he reached his house he unwrapped it and laid it across the back of a chair and gazed at it. It would be the first garment in her wardrobe. He imagined he could see her before a mirror turning to one side to admire the design on the back. He could see her wrapping it around her adorable slim figure.

"Too bad you're going away," said Dick, as they parted on Nan-king Road. "I'll miss you."

"I won't be long in Pekin. I'll call you up as soon as I get back. Be good while I'm gone!"

Be good? He was working at top speed. Temptations didn't occur to him.

The day before Ivor was expected back Dick, walking home, saw a parade approach.

Taking his stand at the side of a street in the French Concession, he watched the irregular files of young Chinese pass before him.

Suddenly there was confusion. One of the students had marched too near a policeman. The policeman struck him. And before Dick could have counted ten, there was a riot.

He braced himself against a wall and watched off the surging crowd which bore upon him. He had to laugh. Why, it was like being in a football game again. But it was hard for the people who were getting knocked down.

The crowd increased; clubs were being used; he heard a shot.

This wasn't such a joke as he thought it would be. A babel of tongues, angry shouts, women's screams.

Then he saw a girl who had been knocked down try to get to her feet, but with each vain effort she was hurled to the ground.

Dick charged into the crowd. Once he was pushed back and lost sight of her green skirt. There—there it was again. Another mob was coming around the corner. If he didn't get to her, they'd trample her to death.

He lowered his shoulders and with his strong arms bent out at the elbow he plowed his way through the struggling mass of sweating, writhing bodies and finally reached her.

Lifting her fragile body above his head he held her above danger. Then, still bearing her above his head, he fought his way to the edge of the crowd and carried her into a doorway and laid her down, taking off his coat and folding it, under her head, to make a pillow for her.

The poor little thing was unconscious. Her eyes were closed, and her black, straight, bobbed hair dangled with the dust from the street.

Dick loosened the neck of her black satin jacket and drew it back from her throat.

What was the child—or was she a woman? Was she white or yellow? He couldn't tell at first, as she lay there unconscious.

Then she opened her eyes. They were blue. Dick clanted so sweet. And my father died a few years ago. Although he was Chinese, he always spoke in English to me. I was educated at an English mission school. I'm Christian."

Dick thought she added the last sentence proudly. He smiled at her kindly and drank his tea. What under the sun was she doing in Shanghai, and why hadn't she a place to go? This was no loose girl—there must be something unusual about it.

May continued.

"I was engaged to be married."

"Yes?" Dick was more than interested now.

"To the purser on a merchant ship. I was to meet him here a week ago to be married. I came and found the ship had sailed."

"Oh!" said Dick with real sympathy in his voice. He thought of how near he had come to missing Enid in Paris.

"My money is all gone, and when you found me I was looking for a position to make enough money to get back to Chefoo. You see, I thought every day he might come."

"Where's your luggage?" asked Dick. "I'll send for it."

"I had only a small bag with me; I couldn't hold on to it when I caught in that crowd."

"No use looking for that now," said Dick thoughtfully.

The girl was frightfully embarrassed, but Dick soon put her at ease.

"I'll telephone and see when the first ship sails for Chefoo and book your passage on it. Could you get your position back if you returned to Chefoo?"

"I think so," she replied. "But I'll be all right if I can get there. People are kind to me there. My father was much respected."

Dick went into the pantry to give an order, and the girl walked quietly into her room when he heard steps on the veranda.

"Hello, Ivor," shouted Dick as he came back into the sitting room and saw Ivor about to ring the bell. "Come in. How are you and did you have a good trip?"

Ivor walked in. As he did, May appeared from one side of the screen.

Ivor stopped, openly admiring the pretty, doll-like little Eurasian. "Miss Quong, Mr. Drake," said Dick.

"They shook hands and Dick invited them to sit down."

Ivor was half laughing to himself and half envious of Dick, who had found a little peach. But all the while he was a little disappointed in the old maid.

"You must stay for dinner with us," Dick suggested most naturally.

"With us," Ivor repeated to himself.

"Mr. Grant was so brave; I should have been dead if it had not been for him—the crowd trampling on me—then everything turned black, and when I came to Mr. Grant was bending over me. I was safe."

Just like old Dick—but why was she here?

After dinner the situation became clear to Ivor. Dick was making arrangements for May to sail the next morning for Chefoo. He had also sent for an amah to purchase a few clothes for May.

"She'll stay here tonight," Dick said to Ivor. "I'll bunk at your house if you'll let me, old man."

They bade May goodnight.

The next morning they saw May safely on the ship. Standing on the dock, they waved to her until she was out of sight.

The bones of the face are hollow, and as a result, there are several spaces. One of them is the hollow under the cheek bone. This is known as the antrum.

There are also other cavities in the honey-combed bones of this region. These cavities all open into the nose, and they are spoken of as the "nasal sinuses," or the "nasal accessory sinuses."

One of these sinus cavities lies in the hollow bone corresponding to the inner end of the eyebrows, and at the root of the nose. This is the frontal sinus.

The sphenoidal sinuses are those deep-seated cavities which lie deeply embedded in the bones behind the nose. Between some of the nasal sinuses and the brain cavity is a layer of bone, like paper in its thinness.

Mucous membrane lines the entire nasal tract. It passes through the nasal openings into every one of the cavities. When one has a hard cold there is much inflammation and swelling of this delicate membrane in the nose. You have a "running" of the nose. When there is much moisture from this inflammation of the membrane of the nose, germs find a ready lodging place there. They may be carried into the interior cavities from the nose.

Now, if an antrum becomes infected with one of these runaway germs, and inflammation is set up there, the fluids become dammed up in this cavity. The narrow passage-way from the nose may be entirely closed by the swelling of the tissues. There is much pain and you may feel as though something was pressing hard on your back upper teeth, crowding them into the bone. It is very uncomfortable, and what is more, it may be very serious unless it is checked. The antrum having become infected, the pus increases greatly, creating a noxious which may be carried to every part of the body by the blood stream.

DR. COPELAND.

When you know you have antrum trouble, and sometimes it is of long standing after an attack of influenza, or a severe cold, the inflammation may be controlled somewhat by cold application or ice packs. This will help to keep pus from forming. A doctor should be consulted and his directions carefully carried out. You see what grave trouble may develop from neglected colds or from influenza. Great care should be taken, after a cold starts, to see that it is kept under control. One may have that dread malady, mastoid trouble, following a severe cold if infection gets up that passageway which leads from the mouth to the ear, the Eustachian tube. Nobody wants to have that serious and painful ailment.

Theatres

A talking comedy and Vitaphone varieties along with the second chapter of Tarzan, the Tiger, is on the schedule.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Will the wonders of the movies ever cease?

"The Mysterious Island" at the Cliftona theatre Friday and Saturday is proving one of the most astounding attractions ever offered on a local screen, and justifiably so.

Photographed in its entirety in natural colors, enhanced with natural sound effects and dialogue, and boasting a cast of more than average brilliance, this novel picturization of a Jules Verne fantasy may be likened to nothing ever seen before.

"The Lost World" had its prehistoric dinosaurs and brontosaurus, "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," had its submarine life. "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" had its weird, futuristic settings, but this new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature has a little that is comparable to all these films and much that has never been imagined, less seen, in a screen play before.

Lloyd Hughes as Nikolai and Jane Daly as Sonia have the romantic leads in "The Mysterious Island." Lionel Barrymore is cast as Count Dakkar, inventor of the submarine, which he hopes will help bring independence to his oppressed countrymen. Montagu Love assumes the role of Baron Falon, who poses as Dakkar's friend until the submarine is completed, when he makes a prisoner of the inventor and tortures his sister in an effort to obtain the secrets of the freak sub-sea craft.

GAINS WEIGHT AS KONJOLA GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Grateful Lady Tells What New Medicine Did For Herself and Her Son.

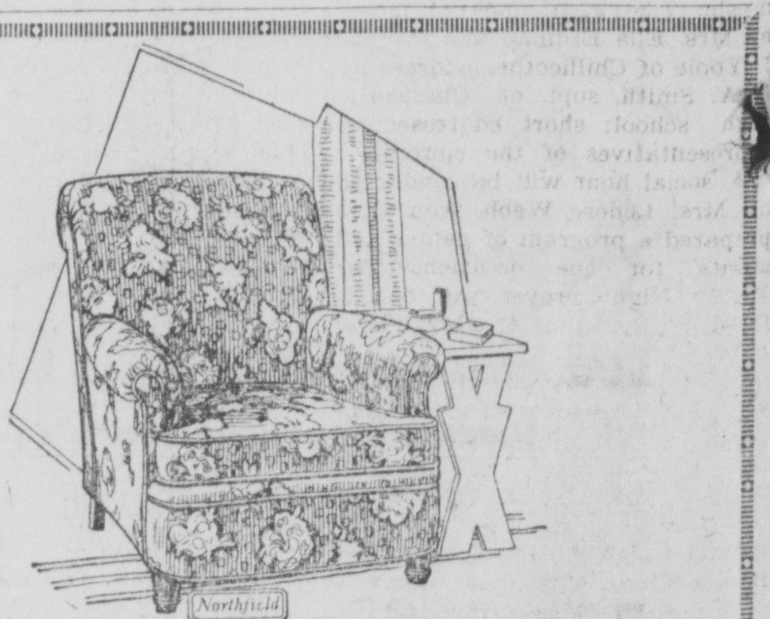

MRS. JOSEPH ZEMAN.

"This amazing medicine quickly ended two years of suffering for me," said Mrs. Joseph Zeman, of Euclid Village, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio. My stomach had become badly disordered and my food never digested as it should. Gas pains and bloating were followed by the most frightful headaches. I was often forced to go to bed for days at a time. Neuritis attacked my arms until I could not raise them and I was practically helpless.

"I never gave up my search for a medicine to help me and finally tried Konjola. In two weeks I gained several pounds in weight and my stomach ailment had been corrected. A week later the neuritis pains left me and I could use my arms again. My whole general health so improved that I feel better than I have in many years. Neuritis also attacked my son Louis, aged 18, and Konjola acted just as promptly in his case. I shall never be without this wonderful medicine in our home."

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the leading druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Ady.

CLUB DEFEATS LAURELVILLE IN ROUGH CONTEST, 49 TO 26

In a rough and tumble, slam-bang affair, the Circleville Athletic Club basketball team won its second victory in two nights at Laurelville Thursday when it defeated the Laurelville Collegians, 49-26.

The game was rough from the start and every minute became rougher until football would have been a mild name for the contest. The Club, with its lineup slightly augmented, started out in a slow manner but after getting up steam near the half stepped all around the Laurelville boys.

The score at the end of the first half was 21-14 in favor of the locals. Art Steele hit the loop for four field goals and a free throw in the first half with the remainder of the scoring being evenly divided. In the second half, George Vierebome and Boyce Parks sailed the oval through the ozone for 12 and nine points, respectively.

Nolan Swackhammer, Ohio University star, was one of the mainstays of his team, along with Armstrong. Armstrong was the best Laurelville scorer, getting five field goals.

Vierebome, with eight goals, Parks with five buckets and a free throw and Steele with four goals and a foul, all in the first half.

were the high scorers for the Club.

D. Archer refereed the game.

TIGERS READY FOR NEW LOOP

With a string of out-of-town court games behind them, some good and some not so good, the Circleville high school basketball team, without a game for this week, has been holding a number of excellent practice sessions in preparation for the opening of the new league in which they are enrolled. Both the boys and the girls will play at Westerville next Friday in the opening of the new loop.

The Red and Black has tasted defeat in each of its starts so far this year but in several have given excellent accounts of themselves. The best showing the team has made was at Chillicothe just a week ago when they lost by a score of 29-19.

Westerville, home of Otterbein college, has a strong court team and will make Circleville's entrance into this new league a tough one.

Bexley, Grandview and Granville are the other members of the new league, as yet unnamed.

..That's Why It Pays You For A Merchant to Advertise!

Now and then a merchant seeks to convince his customers that he does not advertise extensively in the daily newspapers because, should he do so, he would be compelled to pass the cost of such advertising on to those who purchase his goods. He strives only to cover his own shortcomings. Only that merchandise which is worth the money asked will stand the test of newspaper publicity and the scrutiny it brings.

It is the merchant who advertises, who sells his merchandise for less. Success of the stores which rely upon newspaper publicity gives of itself the conclusive proof of that assertion. The store which sells a hundred dresses at $2.00 profit each, makes more money than the store which sells ten dresses at a profit of $3.00 each. Real money making lies in the volume of business done, not in the size of the profit upon every sale.

That is why the merchant who advertises can usually sell his merchandise on a closer margin; why he can undersell the merchant who does not. The cost of his advertising is but an inconsequential item, for it brings the customers to his store by the hundreds while only the handfuls seek for themselves unusual values in the stores of the non-advertiser.

Patronize the merchant who advertises regularly. You will find no old goods lying on his shelves, and he can sell you the latest which the market affords at an attractive price.

45th ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hosler of Mt. Sterling celebrated their 45th birthday anniversary on New Year's day at their home, with a family dinner party. Their guests were Mrs. Lorin McAbee and Wilbur Hosler of Circleville; Mrs. Smith English and Edgar Hunt of Westerville; Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hosler and Miss Fanny Karns of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hosler and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Combs of Mt. Sterling.

WOMEN'S CLUB HAS NEW YEAR'S PARTY

The Business and Professional Women's club meeting Tuesday night was a Christmas party and New Year's watch party combined. The business meeting preceded the festivities. During this time Mrs. Mary G. Morris read a letter of gratitude received from the Girls' Industrial School, Delaware, for the presents received from the local woman's organization.

Miss Minnie Palm was the charming hostess for the occasion, at her home on W. Main-st.

This letter was the result of the Christmas presents the club had sent to the seven girls in the school, from Pickaway-co. Each girl received nine presents, among which was a sweater for each. The Business and Professional Women's club chose this method of spreading Christmas cheer, after the Pickaway-co court house had received word from Delaware, that the girls from this county in that institution were apt to receive no presents.

After the business meeting, the members gathered about a large Christmas tree under which were spread Christmas presents for everyone. Bridge later was the pleasant diversion until nearly midnight which brought the excellent New Year's supper.

The party lasted until the ushering in of the new year. Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick was chairman of the entertainment committee.

The subject of the devotional period was "Being Glad in the Service of the Lord." Miss Nellie McCollister was the leader for the program and devotionals texts and quotations were given by several ladies. Mrs. Fannie Greeno sang a pretty solo and special prayers were given by Mrs. Abbie Gusman. Mrs. Mary Neuding and Mrs. Baker.

Vivid short stories of pioneer missionaries followed. Reading, "A Man that Failed," Mrs. Mary Neuding; "A Brave Missionary to Persia," Mrs. Abbie Gusman. A word picture story, "An African Hero" was realistically told by Mrs. Anne Rutherford. Mrs.

19-Months-Old Hall Child Dies of Injuries From "Christmas Package."
